FREQUENTLY ASKED QUESTIONS

GENERAL

Does participating in ATT&CK Evaluations mean MITRE recommends or endorses my product?

Are ATT&CK Evaluations a competitive ranking?

How does Enterprise 2026 differ from previous evaluations?

Where can I access historical evaluation results and emulation plans?

How can my organization use the results in procurement decisions?

How do I participate in Enterprise 2026?

Registration is now closed. The application deadline was April 30, 2026. See the Enterprise 2026 evaluation overview for full details and requirements. Contact evals@mitre.org with questions.

SCORING & METHODOLOGY

Does a lower TES mean a vendor's product is bad?

What does it mean if a technique is marked N/A?

As a vendor, can I contest my scores after the evaluation?

How does the evaluation handle "observe before block" strategies?

Are results comparable across different years of evaluation?

What adversary groups are emulated in Enterprise 2026?

The Enterprise 2026 evaluation reflects the current enterprise threat landscape, where financially motivated intrusions dominate overall activity and state-sponsored operations continue to pose significant risk — particularly in cloud and infrastructure-focused environments. Specific adversary groups and scenario details are published with evaluation results. Visit the full evaluation documentation for scenario specifics.

ENTERPRISE 2026

Can we participate in both Scenario 1 and Scenario 2?

How is "Source-of-Action" determined for our product?

Do we need to disable or enable specific product features during testing?

What happens if our solution blocks during the detection phase?

Can we use an "observe before block" strategy in protections testing?

Our product is cloud-based and has UI rendering latency. How does this affect Detection Speed scoring?

Can we reference our ATT&CK Evaluations results in marketing?

What is the participation fee?

Participation fees are discussed during the CFP process. Submit the CFP form or schedule a meeting with the ATT&CK Evaluations team to learn more about pricing for your specific participation model.